Australian-born midfielder Adam Goodes told a packed crowd at Sydney's Seymour Centre he was proud to wear the Aboriginal flag in the twilight of his career after an Indigenous coach apologised for misusing his image to promote a commercial deal. Goodes said he was profoundly disappointed by the behaviour of an unnamed AFL official who used a photo of him taken by a schoolfriend on his 38th birthday in the lead-up to the 2010 grand final. "We can all relate to having this farcical encounter on social media," Goodes said on Tuesday night. "It all goes to a picture of me on my birthday taking a photo. The next thing you know, I'm in it and it starts trending and it's an absolute farce. "It was the most disappointing thing that has ever happened to me as a human being. "I think that young and old people must take a look at this episode, and they must look at it very closely." Goodes, who has had his
