Grab a tight match, put on your match gloves, and launch into the wonderful world of the Real Drift Championship and Nina Aquila: Legal Eagle season one! Welcome to a world where speed is everything and every decision means a risk to your life and your car! The Real Drift Championship: Legal Eagle takes place in the exciting world of drift racing, where tournaments are held all over the globe, from snow-covered metropolises to the hottest street circuits around the world. The world's top teams will face-off in this new series, where they will battle for glory in dynamic drift events such as the prestigious Global Drift Championships and the newly launched European Drift Championships, in destinations including the USA, Asia, Europe, Mexico and The Caribbean. And don't forget to check out Season Two rolling in in 2019. Discover the thrill of drifting with the Real Drift Championship. The Real Drift Championship: Legal Eagle - Season 1 is the first of the new Real Drift Championships. The game features dynamic drift events in which teams can drift on the same track in real time. Drift on the same track and compete for the highest number of points to win the race. Developer-brief: Drift fans from all around the world, be it the snow-covered tundra, south of the equator or alpine valleys, all have to experience the joy of drifting. The real drift racing league is gaining significant strength and is now embarking on a new platform to share its game and its content - the Reality Game Platform. "Drift is pure adrenaline; it takes you to the very edge of the road, to the limits of control and unpredictability. You have to keep your cool at all times and be extremely careful. It's the most exciting motor sport there is and its faster and more dynamic than any other," says Ross Campbell, Co-founder and Chief Executive Officer of Real Drift. "This is the reason why everybody is interested in drifting: it's an action sport that's so hard to understand and feels so thrilling." The competition in reality drift racing combines the thrill and adrenaline rush of real world drift racing with a realistic driving experience. Game mechanics in Real Drift: - Dynamically changing weather conditions, each event has a unique weather system. - Engines and tyres allow the driver to drift to set up their own unique set-up. - The physics engine enables the driver to drive with the realism of a Formula 1 car (

[Guide] How to play the new game map 'Sierra de Arispe', where so far there's been some small raids, with the new map 'Kingdom of Montevideo' now there's a larger scale of battles. Sierra de Arispe: The objective is to defeat all the enemies on the map and raise your army as high as possible, and defeat the opposing army in the map as well. When the game begins, it will randomly distribute you in the map and you will be able to perform basic actions like attacking and defending. Your base and front-lines are located in the bottom-left corner and your army is located in the top-left corner of the map. General Techniques: When in an attack action, make sure that you have a decent amount of troops available in order to attack, if you can't attack at least 8-10 times, you will have to stop attacking, and you will be able to rest afterwards. Resting is very important to have a strong army, because if you do not rest your troops, they will have a damage attack, and there will be a temporary HP decline. If you perform some actions, but then you decide to return to your base, you will lose the actions, and you will not have any money in the next 4 actions. The best tactics and battles you can use are the following: The attack is the best action in the game. When attacking, you will get a bonus to your troops if you have a high damage attack, so you should always attack in order to raise your troops. If you want to attack, it will be better to attack the enemy with one of your troops, and then you can perform a lesser damage attack against the enemy. The second attack is also very important. If you want to attack, it is better to attack the enemy, so you can do a second attack with your troops, with a smaller amount of troops than the attack. It will allow you to raise your troops. You should always attack with at least 5 troops in your attack and after that, you can perform a lesser damage attack, for example, you can use only 3 troops, but the damage will be 2 times higher than the second attack. The defense action is very useful, because it's one of the few actions that will give you money, but it's not very useful in battles, since it will not affect the outcome of the battle. The best defense

.0: the next generation of HTC Vive HTC began exploring the VR frontier with the Vive in 2016 and in the past year has grown the first-person, room-scale Vive to a two-person system and partnered with Amazon to bring a software-powered PC to market. The VR platform has rapidly matured and could be poised to transform markets and entire industries. But now it may be ready to explode. The Vive 2.0 combines many of the technology changes that have preceded the launch of the Vive as well as some futuristic ones, and it's the most advanced PC-based virtual reality platform available today. First out of the gate The first-generation Vive launched with only a single OLED display each. Starting in 2018 Vive 2.0 will come with a second OLED display each. The main difference between the Vive 1.0 and 2.0 is the second OLED displays do not offer quite as wide-angle view as the ones in the 1.0, with a FOV about 80 centimeters (32 inches) versus a FOV of 100 centimeters (38 inches) on the Oculus Rift. Currently available for preorder, the Vive 2.0 is expected to be ready to ship in December. An enhanced front-facing camera Early rumors dubbed Vive 2.0 the Knuckles edition, but fortunately that is not the case. The Vive 2.0 will have a front-facing camera, but it isn't the camera seen in the Vive Pro. Rather, it's a webcam to facilitate eye tracking and headset tracking. A rudimentary eye tracking technology has been baked into the Oculus Rift platform, but it's expensive to implement and unreliable. The Vive Pro, planned to launch this year, will come with both a front-facing camera and a built-in eye tracker, but the Vive Pro is a PC-only product. The Vive 2.0 will support room-scale tracking in the same manner as the original Vive. Room-scale tracking is the Vive-Pro and HTC Mixed Reality-ready headsets with the precision necessary for VR experiences to be fully immersive. You might remember back in December 2015 when HTC showcased a prototype version of the Vive, the HTC Vive Tracker, a wearable that let you see your hand in virtual reality, a big moment for the fledgling VR industry. The technology ultimately did not make the final cut into the Vive 1.0, but the front-facing camera is more

This is the 8th solid state (SS) table we have created, based on Shoe, Scooter & Tank's 1992 table, titled Shooting the Rapids. This is the 4th SS Scooter table we have created. All the solid state tables we created, so far have been exactly the same in game look as the video game version. The stock versions are in stock brackets so they are the exact same as the game, and also "factory" pre-release work will not be used. The Shooting the Rapids table has eight banks with 1.5" targets, three banks of spinners and pop bumpers, two eject hole banks, and a Kickback lane. The table has 3 banks of 1.5" drop targets, which will move in 1.5" increments. Notches on each bank will be placed in any order you want, before the table is built. For This table only, I will handle all the audio and video editing of the table for each release. I have also worked hard on each of the other solid state tables. I have now also built over 600 solid state tables, the most of any creator in the company. I have far more than this, but that is roughly 600. There are many hundreds of variations of these tables. Each one differs from the other. I am now up to the fourth variation of the shooting the rapids, and will end the series. This variation is the 4th solid state table. Features: 1 playfield, 4 flippers, 3 pop bumpers, 2 spinners, 2 eject hole banks, 1 kickback lane 1-bank spot targets (1) 2-bank spot targets (2) 3-bank spot targets (2) 7-bank drop targets (1) 7-bank spot targets (1) Gameplay Controls: Game play is the same as all the other solid state tables I have built, only with a different pop bumper. Pressing the flipper buttons will make the drop target move. The layout of the table is the same as the other solid state table games, except for the 1.5" drop targets. Our testing for this table has been going well, we have completed our first round of testing for this table, and everything is perfect. It looks great. The Kickback lane is made from pipe. The flippers have buttons on them. The flippers also have 1" grooves cut into them so you
