Q: How do I work with this GridView's GridViewColumn.IsReadOnly property? I have a large GridView with 18 columns, and I want to be able to make some of the columns read-only (using the IsReadOnly property on the GridViewColumn). In the case of the GridViewColumns with the "done" status indicator, I want to be able to display the done status only if the user has previously saved their changes. I've tried changing the IsReadOnly property, but I then get an error when I display the grid and it tries to read the value of the DataBound property: DataBinding: 'System.Data.DataRowView' does not contain a property named 'RowError' I'm pretty new to C# and WPF, so I'm a little confused on how this works. Is there a work-around for this? I've tried different things with DataTrigger and a custom template, but it hasn't helped.

A: You should handle the RowError property using EventTrigger or code-behind. You can use the following event trigger within your GridView template:
