EA Sports FIFA has taken over the FIFA titles for more than ten years, and now, EA Sports are giving FIFA the genre treatment with all-new features and gameplay-first gameplay that even EA Sports FIFA has taken over the FIFA titles for more than ten years, and now, EA Sports are giving FIFA the genre treatment with all-new features and gameplay-first gameplay that even the most demanding fans have come to know and love. Everything in FIFA is designed from the grassroot up. Our teams in England, Brazil and Argentina have done a phenomenal job of crafting a team of the highest calibre. For FIFA, we've created a game built entirely on ball-based fun. Enormous skill and technique will always be required, but that's what makes FIFA the true test of skill between two players. We believe everyone should have the chance to play to their true potential. FIFA 22 features a new defensive AI system as well as completely overhauled finishing - not a single back pass allowed! The way in which players take on the ball, along with a massive boost in ball control and accuracy, make gameplay more realistic than ever before. Team talk 2.0 Team talk 2.0 has been a long time coming and not only serves as a key element to the team-play mechanics, but the feeling of a match has been improved. During a match, you can listen to the coach talk to his players and get real-time feedback, allowing you to better your individual and team performances. You'll also witness a ton of stuff happen behind the scenes, such as substitutions or tactical changes. Be warned though, if your team accidentally sells a goal while a coach is talking to them, you won't be too happy... Tactical Team-up Tactical team-up makes it much easier for the game to update the quality of a match even in situations where the conditions are less than ideal. You'll now see a set of goals displayed on the field, giving you a visual indication of what's going on around the goal, the average quality of the match and other key factors such as whether or not your team is winning, losing or drawing. If the game judges the quality of the match to be poor, the game will automatically switch to a new version of the game to ensure the best possible experience is delivered
