the web interface, we are using XML. I am tempted to use JSON as a mediator, and get JSON with an XmlAdapter as the actual data. Is there any benefit to going this route? If not, is there any downside? A: It depends on your requirement. If your mobile application is already using JSON as response then using JSON over XML is fine. But if you are trying to support XML as response. Then JSON will provide more "intuitive" experience. However if you don't have any particular requirement then it is better to use XML. Otherwise you will have to redesign your application and tools.
