I have a 1TB drive on my Mac that I use for Backups. I want to do a restore of a backup to this 1TB drive and keep the image for further use. I do not want to blow away the current contents of the 1TB drive. However I want to use the same backup file that I created and keep it on the 1TB drive. Is that possible? Can I do it with Time Machine? If I eject the 1TB drive and then connect it and try to restore from the backup

Rhinoscleroma is a rare cause of chronic obstructive rhinitis or sinusitis in adults. A 35-year-old male with purulent upper airway discharge was admitted to the Hospital. Apart from the typical sinonasal symptoms, his performance was limited. He was slightly pale and moist. The otolaryngologist was unable to obtain any satisfactory endoscopic diagnosis. In spite of the suggestive clinical picture the presence of the bacterium was diagnosed biochemically by the common bacterial cultivation. The patient was then treated with a combination of penicillin and aminoglycoside. The post treatment findings were uneventful. The administration of empirical antibiotics may help to detect a rare infection in an early stage. An early diagnosis is essential to maintain a good prognosis.Q: Using a model bound to a query to bind the result back to the model in the view I have an MVC3 app using Entity Framework 4.1. I am using a query in my controller to get a list of user groups that have the same values for at least two fields in their user. I then need to use the results of that query to populate a user group select list in my view. public class UserGroupController : Controller { private readonly IUserGroupRepository _userGroupRepository; private readonly ILogger _logger; private readonly IUserGroupService _userGroupService; public UserGroupController(IUserGroupRepository userGroupRepository, ILogger logger, IUserGroupService userGroupService) { _userGroupRepository = userGroupRepository; _
