It's the incredible life of a gamer, but it's not just pixels and colors, it's the real gaming. But will the gamer find out why he was chosen to escape from the room, or will he die of starvation? I'm developing a real game in which it's possible to escape from the room, but there are situations when need to kill the hero, to go to the exit. Game is played in real time, in many levels, 3D, 2D, first person and no keyboard. The game will be modified according to what gamers say. *** MOUSE ONLY *** I wish you a good day! 9th May - After three months of hard work, development has finally begun!At this point we are just developing the gameplay. No graphics or even text, yet, we only have a partial idea of the story. Our goal is to gather feedback from the community and after that we will proceed to a second round of Kickstarter for the graphic development of Gamer Simulator. We hope you enjoy the game as we do! 21/03/2014 - With beta out of the way we're ready to release the first main version of the game! Beta was meant as a test version of the game and not meant as the final product. We want to make sure the community has a really good impression of the game before releasing the final version. The first version of the game is now officially released. This is not the end of the road as we have planned a lot of new content for the future. I hope you enjoy playing the game as much as we enjoy developing it! 07/12/2014 - I've just prepared the game for release. It's a beta version of Gamer Simulator, so there will be a lot of things that won't be in the final version, but it's still a good way to try the game before the actual release. I will do an update to the release notes to include some of the things not in the game yet, so you can now start the download :) Just do the following: - Go to Gamer Simulator website - Download "Gamer Simulator v0.97a" 06/07/2014 - Beta (early access) is released! After a lot of work, I've finished the game and released it to a closed beta pool. You can sign up to the beta pool at the link below. Please don't post any bugs or bad reviews just yet. This

What's It All About?

Sit in the peaceful town of Endoor. While it's a typical coastal strip, the people here speak a language unique to this random land: the Litorsainu. It's a strange, half-Dorian dialect that consists mostly of sounds that start with a "b" such as "bal" (meaning "-ball", as it would be like saying "bar" in English).

While Endoor's beach is typical in most regards, it's also haunted by monsters: twisted anthropomorphic creatures known as the Litors. Whenever a man is slain by a Litor, he is taken to the bottomless depths of the ocean. Though this might sound bad, the Litors are actually working to improve Endoor. They are trying to teach Endoor's citizens a new language, convert them into Litors, and eventually...

... destroy the world. This should really pique your interest! While characters are not asked to make decisions between good or evil. Your characters will have to experience war and destruction to be prepared for the coming disaster.

What's the Story About?

Artists -dare- you! The game consists mostly of a textual story that follows the life of you and your friends in a 16-bit environment that was lovingly pixel-arted by a group of indie game artists. Your avatar starts

Belfast is the mid-19th century, located in the city of Belfast, Northern Ireland. It is a city that saw many disasters in its history, including the shipyard that virtually ruined it, the first British bombing of Belfast, and a civil war that lasted from 1972 to 1998. As with many Northern cities, Belfast had experienced a housing crisis in the 1960's and 1970's, and to alleviate this and other problems, in the year of 1977 a new housing project was started in the West of the city. Belfast grew in seven years to a city with 25,000 people, but because of fires and other problems, only 23,000 people were able to live there. The housing project was called Belfast 12, and for the first time in its history, houses were built for the poorest citizens of the city, whom the government did not believe could afford to buy their own house. However, the government could not foresee the failure of this project, for at the time they invested all the money needed in the project. On the contrary, the market rose 20 times in the period of the project's execution. But money was running out. In 1987 the government and the banks made the citizens pay loans. In 1989 the British Parliament granted authority to Belfast to stay in the UK indefinitely. In 1991 the Treaty of Goodwill was ratified in which the Irish government agreed to the incorporation of the province of Ulster in the United Kingdom. Ever since, the region has never been the same. This is the first installment of a puzzle box series. All puzzle boxes will be inside the base game, except for this first one. and where the parts are to be found, which allows you to solve it within a few minutes.
