Furthermore, the system allows players to freely exchange data and conversations with the other characters, and it will deepen the relationship between the players and their party members. Many players have expressed a desire for an online beta for the Tensei series. We've been taking a lot of requests for that and giving it some consideration. Unfortunately, we're not quite ready to pull the trigger on it yet. As a result, we've decided to release a standalone stand alone demo as a thank you to all of our backers. Developing a game is hard, and not many companies have the time and the means to properly develop. So we're incredibly grateful to have backers like you who have given us the motivation to carry on. We're happy to announce that our Tensei Demo will be available to backers now. We're very excited to show you what we've been working on. So grab a copy and check it out. Hey guys, Jacob here. In recent days the process of turning the Tensei Demo into an actual game has been kicking into high gear. We've been moving in a faster pace than expected, and are happy to report we are beginning to see light at the end of the tunnel. We're very close, but that means it's going to be a loooong process. So, as much as we'd love to rush through this and finish it up in a week, we're not quite there yet. So, to lighten the load we've been writing up a plan for what comes next. The plan basically entails making the first three chapters available as standalone games, and then releasing an updated Demo in the near future. We know that's a pretty big change, and if we even manage to pull it off we'll be happy, because it means that the core of the demo will be released in an open beta form. Let's quickly recap on the changes we've made thus far. The most apparent change is that we've started using Unity as our development engine. Unity is super amazing, and I'm glad to have used it for our main project c9d1549cdd

Draw It! is a competitive dating game developed by Biotier Inc. The game was first released in Germany to great success in 1999. Game information Draw It! is a competitive game for 2 or more players, in which players have to compete in getting various points by running around a grid area and pulling down the challenges of the courses. There are 9 different courses which can be colored in various ways, represented by 3 different mascots. The game has never been released outside Europe. There are 3 types of challenges: jumping, drawing and dating. All 3 can be in turn navigated by the player. Each round of the game consists of 2 phases: Navigation and scoring. Elimination Starting with round 3 a new scoring method is used which takes into account the difficulty of the challenges together with the number of different challenges the player has passed before and, in addition to that, determines the chances of winning. The less difficult the challenge is, the higher is the number of points the player gets for successfully pulling it down. The maximum number of points a player can pull down is 30, in direct relation to the difficulty of the course. Only 3 different mascots are used to represent the difficulty of the challenge, in a pattern like this: 3 - Purple 2 - Green 1 - Blue A player with 30 points can easily pull down a difficult challenge, while a player with only 6 can't win even against a paper cup, which has 30 points. On the other hand, a player can perform miracles on a red challenge, basically performing a 180 degree turn around the challenge or even moving around inside of it, bringing the challenge down to zero within seconds. Other factors which increase the score of a player includes the number of passed challenges, and the number of lives left. When the player finishes the round, the game remembers how each challenge was on the course, and whether the challenge was pulled down or not, so even the final score would be determined, if the player pulled down one of the challenges at the end of the round. There is also a zero score category where the player leaves the game without completing the round. Simple rules Make different challenges - Every card has a flag, representing the type of challenge present on the card. Lay the cards out - A player can pull down a challenge, but he needs to have his colored foot on it (this serves as player mark). One of the player's colored feet
