Q: Java KeyUpListener not working Trying to have my game-calculator stop the user from inputting negative numbers. However, it doesn't appear to work. I've already tried using an action listener instead with no luck and also trying KeyUpEvent and KeyListener together. public void keyTyped(KeyEvent e) { if (e.getKeyCode() == 8) { JOptionPane.showMessageDialog(null, "Negative numbers may not be inputted!"); endGame(); } } A: If you're using JOptionPane you don't need to do that, it's already doing that for you. public void keyTyped(KeyEvent e) { if (e.getKeyCode() == KeyEvent.VK_ENTER) { JOptionPane.showMessageDialog(null, "Negative numbers may not be inputted!"); endGame(); } } United States v. Pullman Co. (1910) United States v. Pullman Company, an early United States Supreme Court case, decided May 17, 1910, reaffirmed the legality of the acquisition of utility railroads by municipalities through eminent domain. The principal issue before the Court was the permissibility of private railroads to acquire land for franchise and expansion purposes under the terms of a 1903 act, but this issue was not adjudicated in the case since the Court found that Pullman Company had acquired a non-utility property which was not in the nature of a railroad but was only a public depot which had been constructed by the railroad for the purpose of facilitating the efficient delivery of railway freight and passengers to Pullman's cocoon-making plants. The Court held that a franchise for manufacturing purpose given to a privately owned railroad could not be construed as a railroad franchise, which would have required Pullman's consent under the 1903 Act.
