What's New in the Web Explorer?

Lightweight tool that provides easy access to the internet Fully functional browser can be dropped on any thumb drive Simple design and interface with lots of links for quick search Save, email and print photos automatically This is a serious security matter because the software is not at the mercy of any vendor to patch your computer. In fact, the hardest thing about keeping this security is to update your Flash player and other non-free software. Even if you have this issue, if you do not want a serious security problem you can move to a different browser. Caution: The best way to keep your PC safe is to avoid installing anything on it. Most of what I have suggested here can be done without installing anything and that is good. I want to point out that a very good security program like ZoneAlarm (www.zonealarm.com) will do this for you automatically. If you use a browser that is "IE compliant" like Gecko, Firefox, Safari, Chrome or Opera, there is a chance that your browser will protect you, as well. Please keep in mind that browser manufacturers like Netscape, Mozilla, etc. rarely update anything. IE (Internet Explorer) is Microsoft's default browser, and it is almost impossible to get it to update. For this reason, I suggest you use that as your default browser. It is also possible that there is a bug in your Flash Player or other non-free or third-party software. You will probably have to solve this on your own.
