Video and photo sharing app TikTok, popular in China, has been banned in the UK, The Independent has reported. US tech firm Facebook reportedly dropped TikTok as a launch partner for its app X in the UK earlier this month. The social network said it stopped working with TikTok because it banned certain kinds of videos, according to The Independent. com TikTok has been banned in the UK 'The restriction of the application in the UK has not caused concern to us', The company said in a statement. 'Currently, we have received no feedback on the issue from the UK's Department for Digital, Culture, Media and Sport, which was the creator of X.' The application is owned by US technology firm, ByteDance, The Independent reported. ByteDance was founded by Chinese entrepreneur and billionaire Zhang Xin, who himself owns a minority stake in X through his firm ByteDance Technology. X is the UK's fastest growing social network, with 7million users as of January last year. 'We are constantly reviewing the impact of our policies, processes, and technology and ensure that we do what is right for everyone that uses our services,' The social network said in a statement. 'We appreciate the importance of free expression and value the viewpoints of our community across the globe. The types of content that are available on TikTok are a very small subset of the community content on ByteDance-owned platforms. 'We won't allow content that encourages or promotes violence and hate, or the dissemination of terrorist content.' The social network added that it is 'continually exploring new ways to improve our moderation tools and review and remove content that doesn't comply with our Community Guidelines'.
