there are other mods on the net but if you want to mod a game for whatever reason, the license to do so is still highly restricted, in particular if you try to make changes to the official or any of the numerous fan made expansions (like those of new world computing). on the contrary, hota is free and open-source. hota doesn't strive to compete with the mods of nwc (which would also infringe on their ip) but rather to be complimentary and have the same impact: providing the true feeling of homm, all the way to shadow of death, with all the improvements, fixes and bonuses made by the fans. we don't hold any commercial interest, nor do we pay for anything (except for the beer :p) so that there is no conflict of interest. we also don't hold any contract with any of the companies to sell or distribute the hota mod. hota uses our own inspired rendition of the battlemace, the classical attack action unit of heroes of might and magic. the battlemace is over powered by default, so we give it more finesse and the ability to strike from a distance with the greatest amount of control without wasting unnecessary action points. hota has a few bugs, some caused by (but not limited to) the problem that new world computing did not provide the source code to the patches they used. we have successfully and continuously been collecting and fixing them for the last year. hota is compatible with the original game (heroes 3), and with all of the expansions by new world computing (armageddon's blade, shadow of death, horn of the abyss). the situation is much more complex with the expansions by anthoulia's dassios, as hota also includes extensive bonus features derived from his expansions. 5ec8ef588b
