the basic task of editing video is simple. you select the clip you want to use and then you add effects, transitions, and titles to the clip. you can either add effects, transitions, or titles to the entire clip or you can place the effects, transitions, and titles in individual frames. you can also drag in your own photos or pictures for special effects. once you have created your video you can send it directly to youtube, email, or upload it to a site for sharing with others. to save your movie, you can export it to.avi or.mp4 format for sharing with others. the program also has a built in music player that will allow you to pick from your music collection and apply the music to the video. so, lets say you want to make a video. you can do so using windows movie maker. this will be the easiest way for you to create a video. you will need to first add clips to the video and then you can add effects, transitions, titles, and audio. i have a lot of work to do. i need to edit and edit and edit and create video. i can not use windows movie maker 2.6 as i can not get it to work. it wont even open. i get an error message saying it cant be opened. so what do i do? i have tried to install the movie maker version on my computer. it is not working because windows is telling me to update windows media player. i am not using windows media player, the program that came with my computer. i have downloaded windows media player and it is up to date. is there a way to tell windows media player to update windows media player, rather than update windows? hi, i have just downloaded the movie maker version 2.6. i have also downloaded the version of windows media player and that appears to be up to date. i have windows 8.1 and tried to install the version of movie maker but it does not appear to be working. it says "windows media player is not installed." i have also tried to install the version of movie maker in the windows 7 folder but it does not appear to be working. i do not know if this is because i have windows 8.1 or windows 7.

ok, first, let me give a little back story: i have been creating yt videos for a few years, and i have learned the hard way what a pain it can be to create a complete video in a very short time. my previous editing software was vegas, and although i liked it, it was cumbersome and buggy. and, vegas is extremely expensive. so, i decided to test out the windows movie maker and see if it could be a viable alternative to vegas. i was fairly excited about the prospect and was willing to give it a try. i first downloaded the trial version of windows movie maker and was pretty disappointed in the results. it does not have the functionality of vegas, and it is not even a close substitute. the reason that i gave windows movie maker 2.6 a try was because of the windows movie maker that is included with windows 7 and windows 8. i have used that version for a few years and it works pretty well, but, it is not free. so, i decided to go with the windows movie maker that is included with windows 7 and windows 8. i was hopeful that this version would work better. i was not disappointed. after i downloaded it, i fired it up and a large blue screen appeared. it had a bunch of weird symbols on it and it took a couple of minutes to load. when it did load, it was difficult to use and very confusing. i was trying to figure out what i was supposed to do. to make matters worse, it took a couple of minutes to figure out how to even view the interface. then, once i figured out that you could change the size and position of the interface, i clicked on the options button at the top of the screen. this button enabled me to change the settings for the program, which, at that point, were useless. when i tried to edit a video, the preview screen was just a blank gray box that was completely unusable. so, i gave up and just created some test videos.
