drivers or firmware can be downloaded from the casper project for firmware . drivers for microsoft windows systems can be obtained from microsoft . drivers for other platforms such as linux and unix systems are automatically included in casper. some newer hardware only has a pci or usb compliant motherboard; in such case you will need to obtain a firmware-only driver . in addition to downloading the files you need, you can also make a cd/dvd bootable using the universal usb loader which lets you copy all files to a usb flash drive without carrying any discs around (or with only one). make a liveusb with the usb loader. go to liveusb in casper. insert a bootable cd/dvd of your choice. hit f12. when the cd/dvd is loaded to the usb flash drive in question, click enter on the windows popup. when you boot from a casper disk, you will be offered the chance to press enter for the default installation, or to load an existing linux installation. this is handled by d-i, the install tool in the base of casper. 00:11.2 network controller: realtek rtl8111/8168/8411 pci express gigabit ethernet controller driver_rc.nbplugin: 0x
