A multiplex-PCR assay was developed for the detection of leishmania infantum and Leishmania chagasi DNA in clinical samples from dogs infected with these species. The assay amplified a 400 bp fragment of the chagasi SAG1 gene and a 386 bp fragment of the infantum SAG1 gene. The sensitivity and specificity of the assay was evaluated in 91 samples from clinically suspected cases of kala-azar. The results were compared with those obtained using a conventional microscopic examination and an immunofluorescence test. Leishmania infantum was detected in 26/30 cases of canine visceral leishmaniasis, and L. chagasi was detected in 2/11 cases of visceral leishmaniasis. The multiplex-PCR assay is a reliable and sensitive method for detection of the two species of Leishmania in canine blood samples and can be applied to clinical diagnosis.Riverside University Center The University Center is a multi-tenant retail facility located on the corner of Seventh Avenue and Rosa Parks Boulevard in downtown 79a2804d6b
