KeyMacro (or KeyMacro Password

Recovery) is a free software for keyloggers. It was designed to automatically capture keystrokes from your keyboard and log them to a text file. You can then filter out the text file, search for keywords, or do a batch job to convert it to an ASCII-formatted text file. More information can be found at: KeyMacro is Free software. You can either download the latest version or buy KeyMacro Deluxe version. KeyMacro download is completely free. hidden fees. If you are happy with KeyMacro, you can pay a small donation of $1 to help support the developer. This is however optional. You can remove the donation option from the software anytime you want. KeyMacro is available for Windows only. It uses a wrapper to work around the Mac OS X restrictions on recording of keystrokes. KeyMacro should also work on Linux platforms, although the developer is not sure about it.
KeyMacro is not an Antivirus software and should not be used to protect your computer from viruses. This is because the software itself is designed to work as a keylogger and to capture keystrokes. KeyMacro does not support text-to-speech, audio capture, or macros to be executed by the user. It is not a keystroke logger or text-to-speech software, so it should not be used for these purposes. However, you can use KeyMacro to capture and save your keystrokes to a text file, but this is not a text-to
