Even if you have a new, clean install of Windows, you may still have remnants of programs and software you don't really need. This is the reason why you should use a system cleaner. There are plenty of them available and they all perform the same basic task. The only difference is in the features and attributes they offer. Therefore, it is important to carefully examine all the programs available on the Internet before choosing one. It is always best to first use a free download to make sure it doesn't spy on you or slow down your computer. You can always try it out before you pay for it. One of the best system cleaners is CCleaner, and while it does perform the basic functions, it goes a step further. It does more than remove your cookies and temporary Internet files and that is why it is one of the best programs on the market. The interface is simple and intuitive. You can manage all your different programs in one place and at one time. If you have a lot of different programs, it might be a good idea to create a list of them in order to delete them faster. Another great feature is the optimization tool, which is a separate module that is able to sort your different programs in a more useful way. You can separate them by type, size, manufacturer, operating system and any other attribute you may be interested in. CCleaner provides a CleanUp! option that includes a tool to help you keep your system clean. However, the main focus is obviously on the cleaning option. The program is available for all the major operating systems, including Windows XP, Windows Vista, Windows 7, Windows 8, Windows 8.1

$\mathbb{P}(\Omega \times \Omega) = 1$ Suppose that \mathbb{P} is a set and $\mathbb{P}(\Omega) > 0$ where \mathbb{P} is a probability measure. We know that $\mathbb{P}(\Omega \times \Omega) = 1$. Suppose that $\mathbb{P}(\Omega \times \Omega) = \alpha$ for some $\alpha > 0$ and $\mathbb{P}(\Omega \times \Omega) = 0$ for all $\alpha > 0$. By definition of $\mathbb{P}(\Omega \times \Omega) = \alpha$ we have $\alpha = \mathbb{P}(A \times A) \leq \mathbb{P}(\Omega \times \Omega) = \alpha$. By non-negativity of probability measures, we get equality, that is $\mathbb{P}(\Omega \times \Omega) = \alpha$, and $\mathbb{P}(A \times A) = \mathbb{P}(A)$ which implies $A \times A = A$. But $A \times A \subseteq \Omega \times \Omega$, which by non-negativity of probability measures implies $\Omega \times \Omega = A$. Thus $A = \{x\}$ for some x
